

NIDA Office of Diversity and Health Disparities (ODHD)
Grant Writing and Research Development Part I Workshop

February 26-27, 2015

Neuroscience Center, 6001 Executive Blvd, Conference Room A1/A2, Rockville, MD 20852

Program:

The National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA), Office of Diversity and Health Disparities (ODHD), will offer a Grant Writing and Research Development Part I Workshop on February 26-27, 2015 in Rockville, Maryland for early stage investigators (from underrepresented, diverse groups) interested in applying and receiving funded research support from NIDA. The Seminar Series is designed to provide information and experiences to participants that will strengthen their grant writing, improve their understanding of the competitive research funding process and further their interest in applying for research grants. During this workshop, new investigators will hear about research priorities from NIDA, learn about the NIH grant application and peer-review process, and discuss and get feedback from NIDA program officials and NIDA/NIH funded investigators on their research proposals.

Eligibility:

To be eligible, applicants must: (1) have a Ph.D., M.D., or equivalent degree; (2) demonstrate an interest in drug abuse and addiction research; and (3) have either a late-stage post-doctoral position, a “full-time” appointment at an academic institution or position at a research organization.

Application Procedure:

Interested applicants should submit:

- Abstract of current research project
- One page personal statement, which includes a description of research experience and interests as they relate to substance abuse and addiction research and long-term professional goals in a research career
- Detailed curriculum vitae

Upon selection for this program, NIDA will provide you with additional program information including submission of a research proposal. There are a limited number of slots available for this workshop.

Application Deadline:

Applications must be submitted by email to Flair Lindsey (flindsey@nida.nih.gov) by Friday, December 12, 2014. Notification of acceptance will be emailed no later than Monday, December 22, 2014. NIDA will make an effort to cover expenses associated with participation: round-trip airfare, lodging, per diem and ground transportation (all not to exceed Federal government rates). However, we do encourage you to initially seek financial support from your institution to participate.
